

Donald Trump removes regulations that promote electric cars. Why?

It concerns subsidies and tax exemptions for electric cars and extraordinary taxation of fossil cars and their use.

Trump also announces tariffs on imported cars. That makes foreign cars much more expensive in the US, especially from China and possibly the EU. Too few American cars are bought in the EU, he says. This will naturally be problematic because it is fossil cars he wants to sell to the EU, and then they will also have to change their electric car policy, which involves extraordinary taxation of fossil cars.

Trump withdraws from the Paris Agreement, why? What is his reasoning? He does not want to liquidate the oil, on the contrary. Again, what is his reasoning?

Why does he not believe that the climate is man-made through the emission of CO₂?

Is it because the scientific verification through observations is lacking?

One thing is for sure, electric cars are destroying the American economy!
